Faculty training will consist of forty-five (45) contact hours provided through five (5) modules of nine (9) hours each. The nine (9) hours will be divided into three (3) blocks consisting of the following:

- Three (3) hours of colloquia including consultants, moderated videotapes, and the like.
- Three (3) hours of related outside assignments including web-based instructions/explanations, handouts, reading of articles and/or book chapters(s), viewing and discussion of selected video tapes, visitation of LEP schools/classrooms school visitation as appropriate, and the like.
- Three (3) hours of team role playing/individual work including course planning and development for inclusion of standards and performance assessment of the pre-service teacher.

The ESOL infusion model for the PEU requires that all regular and adjunct faculties who teach specific foundations and methods courses in the various teacher preparation programs (Early Childhood Education, Elementary Education, Exceptional Student Education, and English/Language Arts) receive appropriate training. Therefore, faculties in the Professional Education Unit must have sufficient training in order to infuse the 25 ESOL Performance Standards established by the Florida Department of Education. The standards must be infused into selected courses in the teacher preparation program throughout the Professional Development Unit. Based on the DOE guidelines for ESOL infusion Program approval, the faculty must complete professional development training equivalent to three (3) semester hours or forty-five (45) contact hours of ESOL Instructional preparation.

In 1990, a consent agreement was signed between the Florida State Board of Education and a coalition of eight organizations represented by META (Multicultural Education Training Advocacy, Inc.) The agreement is known as the Florida Consent Decree or META Agreement. It addresses the civil rights of LEP (Limited English Proficient) students equal access to educational programs. The consent decree requires all teachers working with LEP students receive training leading to ESOL certificate coverage or complete requirements for ESOL Endorsement. It requires that prospective teachers receive training in the complete requirements for ESOL Endorsement. It requires that prospective teachers receive training in the areas of cross-cultural communication and understanding, applied linguistics, ESOL methodology, ESOL curriculum and materials, and ESOL assessment and testing.

In 1996 the State Board of Education adopted rules requiring Colleges of Education in the Florida State University System to provide prospective teachers with the instructions necessary to address the needs of culturally and linguistically diverse students or students with limited proficiency in English. With this ruling, what was once a requirement of the Florida school districts became the responsibility of teacher preparation programs. The 2001 Legislation and amendments to Section 6A-5.066, FAC specifies that students entering their freshman year during 2000 through 2001 academic year must include coursework which leads to ESOL Endorsement. The course work must also address the 25 ESOL Performance Standards in the five areas specified in the certification rule for ESOL Endorsement.

The Professional Education Unit (PEU) at Florida A&M University responded to the new mandates by establishing an ESOL infusion model option proposed by the Florida Department of Education. This model adds the ESOL Endorsement to the certification coverage of the majors while infusing specific competencies throughout the remaining courses in the program of studies.

The ESOL infusion model for the PEU requires that all regular and adjunct faculties who teach specific
