18.0 Coastal Management Element

The Florida Agricultural and Mechanical University (FAMU) is currently in the process of relinquishing the John Mulrennan Research Laboratory near Panama City, Florida, to the State of Florida. Funding for the existing research programs previously housed at the site are no longer available, and as such the property and all of the facilities will no longer be maintained and managed by FAMU. Until the official date and time period for transference of duties occurs, FAMU will continue with minim levels of maintenance and management in order to secure the site and to keep only the primarily systems functioning.