Course Description

This course examines and provides experiences for candidates in acquiring expertise to use various technologies in the administrative and instructional realms of schooling. Course content is designed to assist candidates to select, evaluate, and apply appropriate technological applications in the school environment and in their administrative practice. Candidates are required to analyze educational environments to determine appropriate technology needs. Other learning tasks include developing skills in managing information, effective communications, instructional leadership, educational research, budgeting and student/personnel recordkeeping.
The Conceptual Framework in the Professional Education Unit (PEU) at Florida A&M University is an integrated approach to providing educational experiences that result in exemplary professional educators. The Framework is comprised of six themes with the mission of developing high quality classroom teachers, administrators and support personnel. The term “exemplary” refers to the kind of graduates the PEU strives to produce. The figure below provides a diagram of the Exemplary Professional Conceptual Framework. Refer to Appendices for more details.

Teaching Methods and Instructions

Situations and events will be identified in the student’s current life as well as the world of industries and organizations. The focus is to place the student in real-work situations in decision-making. Experiences to be provided in this course may include reading assignments from additional textbooks, related reading from journals, handouts and lectures; term project and examinations; group discussions; oral presentation by class members; guest speakers; Blackboard portal and action research. Each student is encouraged to read appropriate documents (e.g. textbooks, handouts, related readings) in advance.

Blackboard will be the primary platform used to facilitate communication between the students and the instructors. In addition, use of Blackboard will provide students the opportunity to take advantage of the various resources designed to enhance understanding of the principles and concepts covered in this course. Therefore, use of Blackboard is required! Any student needing assistance and/or having difficulty with any aspect of Blackboard use should speak with the instructor during the first week of class. Students may also get technical assistance by emailing OIT@famu.edu or by contacting Mr. Danny Malone at 850-599-3460 in the FAMU Media Center.

Lectures, discussions and student-generated activities will guide the teaching methodologies and strategies used in the course. Students will participate in homework and Internet assignments that may include reading assignments from additional textbooks, journals, external internet links; term project and examinations; and computer-based tutorial, action research. Each student is encouraged to read appropriate documents (e.g. textbooks, related readings) in advance.
Grades in the course are based on satisfactory performance on several assessment measures. The quality of your work and the products you submit counts. Your work should always reflect substantial investment of time and reflection. It should be of superior quality. Grades in this course will be based on the following deliverables:

Grades in the course are based on satisfactory performance on several assessment measures. The quality of your work and the products you submit counts. Your work should always reflect substantial investment of time and reflection. It should be of superior quality. Grades in this course will be based on the assignments listed. All assignments will receive a numerical score ranging from 0-100.

Note: Students must complete at least 80% of the coursework in order to pass the course. Students are strongly urged to keep their own record of points earned. Periodic reports will be available via Blackboard.

Course Requirements/Performance-Based Tasks:

VI. Exams/Quizzes: Presenter/s may administer exams and quizzes, but they will be rated only as a part of activity.

VII. Evaluations (see Appendices):
A. Students will evaluate the presenters based on a PEER EVALUATION FORM. The form will have a rating scale ranging from 1 to 5 (1 is poor and 5 is excellent). The students will respond to questions related to the performances of the presenter in the areas including lesson plan preparation, delivery, classroom management, verbal skills and image. Total average will determine the final points for the presentation. Each presenter may receive a maximum of 100 points for his/her presentation of lesson plan. Major points will be deducted for non-submission of a Presentation Plan. Any student who does not participate in a presentation will receive no-credit.

4. ARTICLES CRITIQUES 2@ 50 pts= 100points.

The purpose of the critiques is to review new and sometimes, past conceptual ideas, and/or to review new evidence for conceptual ideas. A research article critique results from critically examining an article. In most cases, you may have to read the articles provided to you several times to understand it in order to properly critique it. Document must identify the core objective of the article. What is(are) the author’s premise(s).

Students are to critique two (2) articles. The articles should relate specifically to Technology in Educational Leadership from refereed journals. The document should show evidence of higher order thinking skills, analysis, synthesis, and evaluation. In critiquing the articles, think about the article and its research ideas in terms of the chapter reading.

Follow the following guidelines in its specific order (using numbers and subtitles) for completing the critiques:

1. Bibliographic Reference (APA Style) (i.e. full author’s name; Title of article; Name of journal Volume, issue, year and page numbers, etc.)

2. Introduction
   a. State the objective/purpose of the article
   b. State the intended audience
   c. Appropriate journal – Check the mission statement of the journal to determine if the article is linked with the appropriate journal
   d. State whether the article is “conceptual” or “empirical”, and why you believe it is conceptual or empirical.

   Note: Empirical articles and conceptual articles have similar objectives—that is to substantiate an argument proposed by the author. While a conceptual article supports such an argument based on logical and persuasive reasoning, and empirical article offers empirical evidence to support the argument.

   Empirical articles offer substantial, detailed evidence which the author analyze using statistical methods. Empirical articles must include a hypotheses and detailed research results. Empirical research includes experiments, surveys, questionnaires, field studies, etc.

   Conceptual articles may refer to empirical evidence, but they do not provide the detailed analysis of that evidence.

3. Summary of article
   a. Write 2-3 paragraphs that addresses:
      1. What is the problem, issue or opportunity being addressed
      2. What solution is proposed (the solution could be a new model or a theory that explains or remedies the issue or problem

4. Results
   a. Write a brief summary of the important points (conclusions, findings) in the article
5. Article's relationship to class readings
   a. Does the article directly cite any of the class readings i.e., does any class reading appear explicitly in its bibliography or reference sections?
   b. If not, state this explicitly. If so, clearly describe how the authors used the cited article.

6. Contributions – An article make a contribution by adding to the knowledge of researchers in a research field. An article can make a contribution to the research field in many ways. To this end, address the following:
   a. Does the article provide a new way to look at a problem or issues?
   b. Does the article provide new solutions?
   c. Does the article identify new issues?
   d. Does the article provide new insights?
   e. If you believe the article makes no contribution, explain why

7. Foundation—Good research often is built upon theories and frameworks that other researchers have developed. Sometimes articles will be substantially based upon this prior work, and refer back to it in some detail.
   a. Which theoretical foundations does the article and research build on, if any? In what ways? Include reference/citations of the foundation work. (You can determine this in part from the works the article cites.)

8. Reflections: Respond to the following questions:
   a. What is the practical value of the article?
   b. Did the authors provide enough background information for the intended Audience to understand? For you to understand?
   c. What skills, competencies, ideas, strategies, and techniques can be implemented in your professional repertoire?

Proposed GUIDELINES FOR PROFESSIONAL ATTIRE

Students are expected to dress in "PROFESSIONAL attire” during certain components of this course. The rationale for these suggestions is that conservative attire is appropriate for most environments including presentations, symposium, forum and job interviews.

The following proposed guidelines will identify what is expected for “professional attire”.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>SUITS</th>
<th>Conservative cut; solid, pinstripe or pin-check. Choice of colors: NAVY, GRAY CHARCOAL, DARK BROWN, or BLACK. No pastel colors. Men should avoid wearing solid black suits - (reserve for semi-formal occasions).</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Skirts should be straight or pleated; easy to sit in, loose fitting; no high slits or side openings; not more than 3 inches above the knee. NO PRINTS. Skirt must match suit jacket. Females cannot wear pants. However, a pants suit with a long matching jacket is okay. All jacket must cover hips and long sleeved).</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>NOTE:</td>
<td>Navy and gray are &quot;power&quot; colors and the most appropriate for forum, presentations and interviews.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>SHIRTS</td>
<td>Long-sleeve cotton or broadcloth: solid or conservatively striped. Choice of colors: white, ivy, beige or pale blue.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>BLOUSES</td>
