Join the Research Pipeline

The Undergraduate Pipeline Network summer research experience will work to cultivate your interest in research while helping you attain skills needed to apply for and succeed in your research career.

Participation in UPN will provide the opportunity to:

• Conduct biomedical or community-based/health disparities research for 10 weeks at a nationally recognized Health Sciences Center
• Build your credentials for graduate, medical or other professional training.
• Assist in the design, collection, processing & analysis of scientific data.
• Learn cutting-edge research techniques and use state-of-the-art technology.
• Present your research to the New Mexico scientific community.
• Receive a summer stipend of up to $5,000.
• “Experience so many interesting things” while having “a wonderful time” and a “great summer” according to past participants.
