FAMU Honors Living-Learning Community

The Honors Living-Learning Community (Honors LLC) is a community of scholars that live in a reserved section of FAMU Village. This community is comprised of about 40 students and located near the heart of campus. Residents participate in honors events, learn about research and global education opportunities, and develop presentation skills.

Program Goals

- Promote involvement with the campus community through residence hall activities, student organizations and interaction with faculty, staff, and other students
- Provide additional opportunities for informal out-of-class interactions between honors students and faculty.
- Provide opportunities to participate in activities that enhance the undergraduate experience.
  - Participate in the Honors Colloquium.
  - Participate in leadership opportunities.
  - Involvement in service learning and community service.
  - Study abroad.
  - Conduct research.
  - Complete an internship.
