FAMU Living-Learning Communities (LLCs)

Beginning Fall 2015, FAMU will offer Living-Learning Communities (LLCs) in the following academic areas: Allied Health Sciences, Business and Industry, Journalism and Graphic Communication, and Science, Technology, Engineering and Math (STEM). First-year students who share common academic interests will live together in the residence hall (FAMU Village) and interact with faculty in both residential and classroom settings, providing students with unique opportunities for faculty engagement, active learning, and collaboration with peers. Students will also participate in focused out-of-class learning experiences, such as group activities, service projects, career exploration, field trips, and cultural and social events. Incoming freshmen who have already been admitted to FAMU are encouraged to apply for one of the LLC options by the deadline date (June 1, 2015). For more information, go to the University Housing website at www.famu.edu/housing (click on "Living-Learning Communities") or contact Brenda C. Spencer, Ph.D., director for Academic Integration and Student Transitional Services for the Undergraduate Student Success Center at (850) 412-5790 or brenda.spencer@famu.edu.