SAFETY

COVID

Florida A&M University (FAMU) Housing has adopted the position that there is no COVID testing or vaccination requirement to live on campus. Due to the broad availability of COVID vaccines and personal protective items, i.e. face coverings, etc., like other State University System (SUS) institutions, FAMU is no longer offering COVID isolation spaces for students who test positive. The University does not have the capacity or available space to accommodate isolation or quarantine.

Effective Fall 2022, students who test positive for COVID are permitted to isolate themselves in their residence hall room, regardless of whether they have a roommate or not. Students always have the choice to isolate off-campus; however, they are not required to do so.

Students should contact the Student Health Center for information about medical services available on campus, including COVID testing and vaccines. Students are encouraged to follow CDC COVID-19 Community Levels (COVID-19 Community Levels | CDC) and their guidance for making decisions about individual prevention behaviors.

Due to ongoing concerns regarding infectious diseases (COVID-19 and Monkeypox), volunteers will not assist with move-in this fall.

ESSENTIAL RESOURCES

RENTAL INSURANCE RECOMMENDED

Renters insurance provides valuable protection if a student's personal belongings are stolen or damaged by a covered event, including laptop computers, smart phones, bicycles, game consoles, textbooks, clothing, and other items. In most instances, the university assumes no responsibility if your valuables are lost, stolen or damaged.

Renters insurance also protects students financially for unintentional damage to the student's residence, or bodily injury to others for which the student is legally liable within the residence premises.
